ALL it The Night of the Living Has-Beens. The low-key residents of Butte, Mont., found their home overrun by a Who's Who of boy banders as members of *NSYNC, Backstreet Boys, O-Town and 98 Degrees took over the town to film a cheesy new Syfy channel flick, Dead 7.

"The whole town was buzzing about Dead 7 filming here," says a Butte resident. "But everyone's over it now. Those pop guys are partying their butts off, and Joey Fatone is by far the worst."

Justin Timberlake's former bandmate said bye, bye, bye to his wife, Kelly,

"It's tough to say what Joey's been chasing harder — the women or the booze," explains the Montana native. "He's running around, belligerent, all over town and will sleep with anyone he can get his hands on." (When contacted by Star, Joey commented: "Really??? LOL... if anything, I'm hooking up with the rest of the Boy Band cast...")

The source adds that a local stripper has been playing tour guide — and possibly more — for Joey, 38, whom Star busted last February kissing a mystery blonde in Vegas. "One night at a bar, he actually kicked a woman to get her attention," the local claims. "That's not how we do things here. These guys were my biggest crushes growing up, and they have turned out to be jerks!" ★

Vicki Gunvalson put the "pain" in champagne during a recent day of beauty at a swanky San Diego spa. The Real Housewives of Orange County star came in with a pal and sipped Veuve Cliquot as the staff catered to her every whim, which included pricey body wraps — but then balked when asked to settle up. "When we gave her the bill, which was thousands of dollars, Vicki flipped out," claims a spa employee. "She ranted that for that amount of money she could buy a new outfit!" (A rep for Vicki claims that the treatments were supposed to have been comped in exchange for her publicity.)

After her tantrum, the spa manager gave in and allowed the reality star to pay whatever she thought was fair. "Vicki wrote us two checks, totalling $500, which barely covered the gratuity," fumes the worker. "Her behavior was appalling. She even deleted her Tweets and Instagram posts thanking our salon. Lindsay Lohan may have fame, but quality friends are apparently hard to come by. A male Uber driver in his 50s revealed to Star that Lindsay was so chatty during their drive that she invited him to out for a meal!

"She asked if we could hang out together in the near future. A few weeks later she called and we ended up in Santa Monica for lunch!" dished the driver, adding that he didn't get a romantic vibe from the troubled actress but sensed that she simply didn't have anyone else to talk to.

As Chris moves on with yet another leggy blonde, Star catches Jen flirting up a storm (and causing quite a scene) at a singles bar.

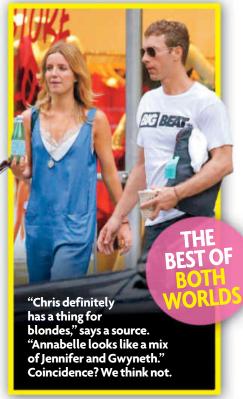

FTER more than a year of dating, Jennifer Lawrence has called time on her rocky romance with Chris Martin, and sources tell Star neither one of them seems all that upset by the breakup! While Jen lets loose in Los Angeles, a supposedly commitmentphobic Chris has been busy rebounding with Peaky Blinders actress Annabelle Wallis.

According to insiders, Jen wanted something more serious with Chris, but the newly divorced dad told her he wasn't ready to settle down. "And yet, Chris moved on rather quickly," says an insider, "and he isn't exactly hiding his new relationship either." After paying Annabelle, 30, a visit last month in Vancouver, where she was filming Come Find Me, Chris, 38, whisked her off to New York City, where they were snapped leaving his hotel on Aug. 20 before tucking into a romantic dinner at Lucali restaurant in Brooklyn.

But Jen isn't sulking at home, nursing her broken heart with a pint of Ben & Jerry's, either. According to pals, the actress, 25, is single and ready to mingle. "She isn't bothered by Chris' new girl," says the source. "She's having too much fun to care."

Indeed, an eyewitness spotted Hollywood's highest-paid actress taking her pick of eligible bachelors at FYF Fest's after party on Aug. 23 at The Standard hotel in Downtown Los Angeles. "Jen was definitely on the prowl, chatting up a few different guys," a partygoer tells Star. "She was pretty drunk, so you could hear her flirtacious laughter from across the bar." Now, that's a true American hustler! *

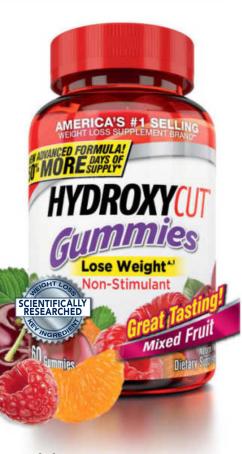

Here comes the pregnant bride? According to insiders, the plans for Christina Aguilera's winter wedding to fiancé Matt Rutler, 30, might need some adjusting because these two are trying for another baby! "Christina's doing everything she can to make it happen," says a source close to the couple, who are parents of daughter Summer Rain, 1, and share custody of Christina's son Max, 7, with exhusband Jordan Bratman. "She's started taking prenatal vitamins again and makes sure to steer clear of alcohol," the insider reveals. "Christina's always wanted a big family, and she loves the idea of walking down the aisle with a beautiful baby bump. In fact, some of us think she might already be expecting." No wonder the Voice coach, 34, opted out of this season!

Katherine Heigl has asked her musician hubby, Josh Kelley, to quit his sweet side gig as a stay-at-home dad and get back to business! and start bringing home a paycheck."
Despite snagging a second chance on network TV with a role on Doubt, the actress, 36, knows their good fortune might not last. "Their relationship had never been a stable one," the source says. "Shia just couldn't do it anymore." However, the actor, 29, certainly hasn't wasted any time in cozying up to another one of his costars, American Honey's Sasha Lane (left). The pair have been spotted grabbing froyo and going grocery shopping since he ditched Mia, 22, overseas. "During filming, Sasha developed a crush on Shia," spills a pal. UESTS at a high-society wedding in Devon,
England, were buzzing on Aug. 15 when Prince
William showed up not with his wife, Duchess
Kate, but instead with her sister, Pippa Middleton. "Kate's name was on the seating plan up to the last minute," says a royal source, "but she couldn't face the 200-mile journey to the nuptials."

This wasn't the first appearance

Kate has missed in recent weeks. She's attended only one official engagement since her daughter Charlotte's christening on July 5; William, on the other hand, has appeared solo at no less than seven events — many of which Kate, 33, would traditionally attend. In fact, the former Ms. Middleton hasn't been seen in public in more than a month!

As speculation runs rampant about the duchess' reclusiveness, sources close to the royal couple tell Star that she has a good reason to stay out of the public eye. "She's in the early stages of pregnancy with baby No. 3," an insider reveals, "and she's not taking any chances!"

THE DISAPPEARING DUCHESS

Given Kate's history of difficult pregnancies — she was hospitalized with hyperemesis gravidarum, or acute morning sickness, in late 2012, when she was carrying Prince George, now 2, and she suffered from a similar condition while pregnant with Princess Charlotte, who was born May 2 — it's no surprise that the duchess wants to take it easy this time around. "Kate has the Queen's blessing to forgo royal duties for at least two months, until she overcomes the threat of sickness," the source explains.

That included skipping the Aug. 15 nuptials of socialite Daisy Dickson and wealthy real estate agent Bear MacLean. "William put his foot down and decided her health must not be put at risk. So Kate rested at home and spent her day relaxing and playing with George and Charlotte," the insider adds. "Pippa was delighted to escort William to the wedding. Kate knows she can always rely on her sister and doesn't hesitate to call for her assistance."

Still, this was the fifth wedding William, 33, attended without his wife in the past year, and royal observers have begun to criticize the couple for offending those expecting to see them together. One columnist even accused William of "doggedly maintaining prebaby levels of partying" rather than staying home to comfort his wife which reportedly left Kate fuming. "William and Kate never want to offend or disappoint old friends, but they've agreed that he'll fly the flag alone if necessary, while she carries out her important role as a stay-at-home mom," the source explains. "And, as she's coping with the early effects of her pregnancy, she's thankful to be relieved of the pressure to appear perfect in public."

Kate's Wedding No-Show

CALM BEFORE THE STORM

William let a clue slip about his wife's condition recently. Sources say he confided to friends that he and Kate had been hoping to welcome a third child soon. "It's a wonderful surprise," the prince noted, presumably referring to this third pregnancy, before praising his wife for her "amazing mothering skills."

Adding fuel to the fire, the couple have called off a planned February vacation with Kate's parents to the ultraexclusive Caribbean isle of Mustique. Instead, they'll take the holiday in Novemberbefore the duchess' baby bump becomes

The family's last appearance together was at Charlotte's July 5 christening. Since then, Kate has largely stayed home with the kids. "She told George he'll soon be a big brother again," says an insider, noting that the tot is hoping for another little sister. "The prince got so excited, he tried to pass along the news to Charlotte, and Kate had to explain that the baby was too young to understand.

Insiders say a couple's country

home, Anmer Hall,

is already being converted into a

a target for photographers. "Kate's third baby is apparently due in late April or early May, so she'll likely be showing by the New Year," the insider explains. "She knows the paparazzi will try every trick to get the first photos of her bulging swimsuit — that's why she wanted to take an earlier vacation. She figures her > schedule to see that wish come true." Insiders say the duchess has told friends that she would settle for three kids if medical experts thought a fourth pregnancy might put her health at risk.

And while Kate hasn't yet experienced the debilitating hyperemesis gravidarum she's faced in the past, she still suffers from some unpleasant symptoms. "Kate tires easily these days, and she's been feeling nauseated. That's why she's on bed rest, with the regular attendance of a doctor and nurse," the source says. "This time around, Kate and William are doing everything they can to ensure her pregnancy remains smooth and stress-free." *

PIPPA STEALS THE SHOW!

1 IN 6 AMERICANS STRUGGLES WITH HUNGER. UNITE AND FIGHT TO END HUNGER IN AMERICA AT

GREATNATIONSEAT.ORG

OSH DUGGAR was the first celebrity whose email was traced to the notorious infidelity website Ashley Madison. But the reality is, a number of reality TV stars have now been caught up in the expanding hacking scandal. The latest D-list celebs include Jionni LaValle, the husband of former Jersey Shore cast member Nicole "Snooki" Polizzi, and Josh Taekman, who's married to The Real Housewives of New York City star, Kristen Taekman.

On Aug. 24, news broke that Jionni, 28, had allegedly joined the controversial website that boasts the come-on tagline, "Life is short. Have an affair." Although Jionni refused to comment following the revelation, his wife of nearly a year jumped to his defense the following day. In a lengthy Instagram post, Snooki, 27, wrote: "He's a stand up guy who loves his family more than anything in the world. So no, my husband didn't sign up on that website to cheat on me. Honestly, if he wanted to cheat — he would go out and do it. Not sign up on a website and pay for it."

TWO-FACED

However, a source tells Star; in reality, Snooki is embarrassed and furious over the dark turn of events for her family. "She's actually extremely upset about this — and she and Jionni have been screaming at each other," claims the insider.

Incredibly, during her Naturally Nicole podcast on Aug. 25 — the same day that she publicly defended Jionni — Snooki had the audacity to chastise Anna Duggar for standing by her hubby Josh. "It's like, 'What the fk is wrong with you?' "she exclaimed. "Like, what are you doing?"

PAST PROBLEMS

Adding insult to injury, this isn't the first time rumors have surfaced that Jionni has a wandering eye. Last January, a sexy, 26-year-old Florida woman claimed the father of Snooki's children, Lorenzo, 3, and Giovanna, 11 months, had tried to hook up with her after they met at a Fort Lauderdale nightclub. "[He asked] me to come back to the boat [he and his friends] were partying on," she insisted. "I didn't. It was clear he wanted more."

Despite her feelings of humiliation and anger over Jionni's latest indiscretion, the source say Snooki would never end their marriage. "She won't throw him out over this," adds the source. "Besides the fact that she has the money and there's no prenup, Nicole wants two more kids. I wouldn't be surprised if she gets pregnant again just to counter this bad news."

— LINDSEY DIMATTINA ★

Fans of The Real Housewives of New York City have watched Kristen Taekman lament about her husband never being around to help out with the parenting of their two kids. Now it turns out there may be a reason.

On Aug. 25, Josh Taekman, 46, was called out for being the latest high-profile member of Ashley Madison.

The entrepreneur initially denied his involvement, claiming: "There's not a shot in hell that I'm a subscriber.... I have no knowledge of that. This is the first I've ever heard of it." However, Josh came clean the very next day. "I signed up for the site foolishly and ignorantly with a group of friends, and I deeply apologize for any embarrassment or pain I have brought to my wife and family," he sheepishly admitted in a statement. It was also reported that Josh had spent thousands on the site through 62 paid transactions.

Though Kristen, 38, is publicly standing by her man, the former model is devastated, a source tells Star. "He's been lying for this long, and then he tried to lie about it again. Now everyone knows about their marital problems — and Kristen's heart is broken."

T'S been a rough month for Rosie O'Donnell. On Aug. 6, Donald Trump called her a "fat pig" in front of 24 million viewers during the Republican debate. Five days later, her teenage daughter Chelsea went missing — and Rosie waited six days before reaching out publicly for help in locating the girl (she was found unharmed a day later in New Jersey, holed up with a hookup she met on Tinder). Then, on Aug. 23, Rosie's father, Edward, died of cancer. Fortunately, as Star has learned, behind the scenes, the former host of The View has been leaning on her new love interest, Academy Award winner Tatum O'Neal.

"They've known each other for a while but the secrecy of their dating has made it more exciting," says a source close to the pair, who were spotted enjoying an intimate dinner together on Aug. 7 at NYC's Da Silvano restaurant. "They aren't quite ready to go public with their romance."

UNDER WRAPS

There's a good reason for their secrecy, says the source. Rosie, 53, began dating Tatum, 51, soon after divorcing her second wife, Michelle Rounds, in February of this year. Currently embroiled in an ugly battle with Michelle as they vie for sole custody of their 2-year-old daughter, Dakota, "Rosie believes she needs to hide her newfound happiness because it would for their child," says the source.

Despite Rosie's concerns, the source adds, "she and Tatum have actually been very sweet together. They even repost each other's tweets." Still, the source adds, "they've both got their dark sidesand that could end up throwing a lot of roadblocks in their way."

FLAMMABLE CHEMISTRY

It was only this past May when Tatum who, at age 10, became the youngest actress ever to take home a Best Supporting Oscar, for 1973's Paper Moon — publicly announced that she was bisexual. "I like women," she revealed. "I definitely have been dating mostly women recently." And

But friends worry that Rosie's personality, plus Tatum's past, could come back to haunt them. Tatum has struggled with drug addiction for decades, and she's been to rehab four times — most recently in 2008, following an arrest in NYC for trying to buy crack cocaine.

"Tatum needs stability and clean living, and Rosie is the furthest thing from that,' says the source. "She likes a drink and a smoke, and she's not going to stop for anyone. And given their fiery tempers, the thought of them having a serious argument is scary! You never want to be on the wrong side of Rosie, because she can turn on you in an instant. Tatum will discover that soon enough." ★

FAMILY FRICTION

Family drama and discord may be an area where Rosie and Tatum bond. Rosie had a strained relationship with her father ever since she was a youngster, and now she's having trouble with her own child. Adopted daughter Chelsea, who suffers from mental illness, recently ran away to take up with an ex-con and accused heroin dealer seven years her senior. Six days after she was found, on Aug. 24 —

dad, Ryan

Chelsea's 18th birthday — sources say the girl's birth mother drove to New York to take the teen to Wisconsin, reportedly against Rosie's wishes.

Meanwhile, in her autobiography, Tatum claimed she was physically and verbally abused by her dad, actor Ryan O'Neal (who denied the allegations). And last year, her eldest son, Kevin, was arrested for possession of cocaine and painkillers.

Rob & FKA twigs

OVER ALREADY?

N Aug. 23, singer/performance artist FKA twigs took the stage at the FYF festival in Los Angeles and shocked onlookers with her cutout bodysuit and the overtly sexual dance moves with her hunky male dancers. Although her rumored fiancé, Robert Pattinson, wasn't at the show, his lover's steamy onstage behavior has been causing friction between the two behind the scenes for quite some time. "Ironically, it's the kind of edgy mystique that attracted Rob to her in the first place," a source tells Star. "But now he seems to have become jealous and controlling, and he wants her to tone it down.

"FKA thinks Rob is suddenly being very old-fashioned — and to her, just because there's the possibility they'll tie the knot shouldn't mean she has to change who she is."

TELL IT, GIRLFRIEND!

After her Aug. 23 show, the 27-year-old, Gloucestershire-born performer (real name: Tahliah Debrett Barnett) attended an after party at L.A.'s Standard Hotel and an eyewitness overheard her venting to a pal on her cell phone about Rob.

"It sounded and felt to me like she and Rob had recently had it out," the eyewitness tells Star. "She was saying that he was mad she was being too sexy and she wanted him to be more understanding of her art. She even called Rob 'needy' and 'overprotective' — and I noticed she wasn't wearing the ring that everyone has assumed is her engagement band."

WORLDS APART

Just two days after her phone lament, FKA was spotted on the arm of a muscular mystery man as they headed to the movies in Hollywood. Where was Rob? As it turns out, the 29-year-old actor recently began five weeks of shooting in Belfast for the adventure film Lost City of Z—to be followed by two months of shooting in Colombia.

"I think FKA wants to get the message across to Rob that she isn't going to put up with his attitude," says the source, "and that she'd be happy to fully move on if he doesn't get his act together." *

FORMER TWILIGHT TWOSOME KRISTEN STEWART AND ROB PATTINSON HAVE MOVED ON TO NEW ROMANCES. BUT WHILE KRISTEN AND GALPAL ALICIA CARGILE ARE SAILING ALONG, ROB AND FIANCÉE FKA TWIGS HAVE HIT ROUGH SEAS.

RISTEN STEWART is notoriously private about her love life, but she may have dropped a bombshell about the status of her relationship with galpal Alicia Cargile during a recent after party in Los Angeles for her new film. American Ultra — and belated best wishes could be in order! "She was openly referring to Alicia as 'my wife,' and all her friends and costars were patting her on the back and saying congrats," an eyewitness from the Aug. 18 soiree at the Ace Hotel tells Star.

> Alicia, 29, Kristen's former personal assistant, was there for the actress in her darkest days, after she was photographed snuggling with married director Rupert

Sanders in 2012 effectively ending her romance with Pattinson. And while Kristen, 25. has danced around the question of her sexuality. she and Alicia — who were photographed kissing and holding hands in Hawaii last January — "are happiest when they're together," says an insider. "They complement each other perfectly." *

Soul Mates

"Kristen hasn't openly discussed marriage, but she says Alicia is The One," an insider tells Star.

After giving birth to son Reign last December, Kourtney Kardashian has lost more than baby weight; she's also ditched her petulant boyfriend of nine years, Scott Disick and traded him in for a sick revenge body! Kourtney not only got serious about fitness by hiring Fergie's trainer, Don Brooks, but the 36-year-old Earth Mom is devoted to healthy eating. "She tries to make most of her food herself, incorporating fresh organic produce and nonprocessed foods," says a source. "She snacks on Three babies later, Kourtney stays lean and mean with a ban on processed foods. She allows her kids (Mason, 5, Penelope, 3, and Reign, 8 months) kid-friendly chips and crackers, but her own snacks revolve around in-season organic fruits with edible, nutrient-rich skins — pears, peaches and apples, to name a few — and fiber-packed whole grains.

Except in this outing, his "package" is a group of identically dressed hotties who turn out to be a female bankrobbing squad. There are ruthless Russian gangsters, a father-son dynamic (with Ray Stevenson as Frank's dad) — and, of course, a lot of high-speed action and automotive mayhem. Sept. 4

\rightarrow JIMI HENDRIX: ELECTRIC CHURCH

Premieres Friday, Sept. 4, at 9PM on Showtime

Rock icon and perhaps the greatest guitarist who ever lived, Jimi Hendrix died 45 years ago, but his music — and the fascination by old and new fans lives on. This new documentary offers previously unseen footage of the 1970 Atlanta International Pop Festival, one of his last major public performances. That footage is, as with almost all Jimi Hendrix performances, truly eyeopening, filled with the kind of casual brilliance and energized playing that marked his shows. Unfortunately, there's far too little of Jimi and way too many talking heads chatting about the festival's history; people who knew Jimi talk about him as a person, while people who didn't know him talk as if they did. But really — you just want them to shut up so he can play his guitar. 🗼 🖈 🟠

Jackie Chan, John Cusack and Adrien Brody seem to be an unlikely trio to star in an historical epic — and they are. It's 5 B.C., and Chan is part of the protective squad that keeps peace on the international Silk Road in China. When a runaway legion of the Roman Empire, led by Cusack, shows up on their doorstep, Chan and crew make friends of their foes (the film's theme) — then join them in battling the army of renegade Roman general Tiberius (Brody). The armies are color-coded so you can tell them apart during battle sequences, but, unfortunately, all those scenes of soldiers at war are massive and dusty without being exciting. Cusack and Brody each have one-on-one sword battles with Chan, but the action seems to be created wholesale, rather than with an eye toward excitement and suspense. The dialogue is wooden or overripe, depending on who's speaking. It's all heat without much light.

LONG STORY SHORT: This blade needs sharpening.

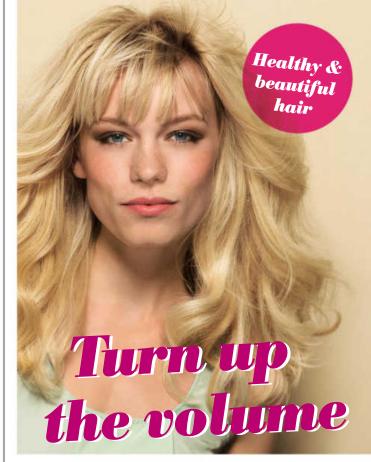

BREAK POINT

In this clever new comedy, Jimmy Price (Jeremy Sisto, far left) is a bitter pro tennis player whose career is almost over, but he pines for one last hurrah. Since he's alienated every doubles partner he's ever had, he turns to his estranged brother, Darren (David Walton). He's a former tennis player turned substitute teacher with not a lot of love for his bullying older brother. But they find a way to work together, as they try to climb the ladder to a slot in a Grand Slam tournament. It follows a recognizable formula of hostility giving way to a shared goal while moving beyond past history. Sisto brings a slash-and-burn quality to his sharp-edged one-liners, while Walton, one of the more underrated comic actors around, works his own unique rhythms to get laughs. The real find is young Joshua Rush, a kid with great timing playing a young tennis student who teaches life lessons to the two brothers.

LONG STORY SHORT: It feels familiar, but it will still amuse you.
